Q.1 Read the students' writing about New York, then answer the questions below. 15 points

New York! New York!

Holly and Sofia: The Metropolitan Museum of Art

One of the most fascinating places we visited in New York was the Metropolitan Museum of Art at 1000 5th Avenue at 82nd Street - what an amazing address! We investigated the museum on the web to get some background information. It's one of the world's largest art museums. It has more than two million works of art from prehistory to the present day, and the exhibits come from all over the world. It opened its doors two the public on 13th April, 1870 and nearly five million people visit it each year.

Because it is so vast and there is so much to see, we were given a floor plan. We were told it was a good idea to decide on three areas we really wanted to see. We chose the sections on Islamic Art, Chinese Art and Arms and Armour. We made sure we had some time left at the end of the visit to go up to the roof garden that has a great view of Central Park.

Jack and Ali: The Lion King

You can't go to New York and not see a Broadway musical. Our group decided on The Lion King at the Lyceum Theatre in Times Square. We took a train to 42nd Street and arrived in 'Theatre Land'. It was after dark but you would never have guessed it. So many people! So many lights from so many billboards. One is even powered by wind and solar energy! We watched the lights flashing on and off as we queued for our tickets.

And what about the show? Magical. Prince Simba are first in line to the throne but his evil uncle, Scar, plots to destroy King Mufasa and Simba. Scar brings about Mufasa's death, then convinces young prince Simba that it was his fault. Simba doesn't know the truth and he runs away since many years. When Simba discovers the truth, he returns home and becomes King. The extraordinary huge, vivid animal costumes were astonishing. The audience booed Scar and cheered Simba. Everyone were humming and singing as they left the theatre.

Back in Times Square - just as bright and noisy as when we arrived. No wonder New York is called 'the city that never sleeps'!

Laura: Meeting Professor Brown

Professor Brown inquired if we had enjoyed our week in New York. Holly said, "It's been absolutely brilliant. We told him that we had been sightseeing, taking photos and shopping. He went on to say that we would soon be back in our own countries but we needed to stay in touch because we had a task to perform. "What sort of task?" Jack asked. The Professor informed us that we were going to create a website where young people can learn about each others' lives. He told us to take a leaflet where we'd
